Dear all

This morning the Corrective Services (No Body, No Parole) Amendment Bill 2017 was passed with amendment.

There have been a number of SP crim team and QCS officers involved in the development of this Bill - including in the threshold consideration of the Sofronoff Parole Report and its recommendation for this law reform; and then the development of the Bill and its passage through the House. Officers involved along the way included Jo, Brian, Carolyn, Michael and Sarah from SP; and Tom, Kate and Clem from QCS.

Also a big thank you as always to the admin team - in particular Mardi and Michelle - for that behind the scenes work that is so important to bringing it all together.

Without in any way taking away from everyone's contribution, special mention must be of the seamless transition of the lead on this from Carolyn to Sarah; and also to Sarah and Michael's work over the past few days in relation to amendments moved during consideration in detail.

If I have not mentioned anyone who should have been mentioned please be assured this oversight was not intentional.

Thank you all for your hard work, and well done to all concerned both in SP and QCS.

Thank you for your email dated 27 July 2017 regarding [redacted] being released on parole and seeking a meeting with the Attorney-General. The Honourable Yvette D'Ath MP, Attorney-General and Minister for Justice and Minister for Training and Skills, has asked me to respond on her behalf.

[redacted]
[redacted] Unfortunately, due to other working commitments, the Attorney-General is unable to meet with you at this time.

The Attorney-General appreciated the your attendance alongside other impacted families at Queensland Parliament to witness the passage of the Corrective Services (No Body, No Parole) Amendment Bill 2017 (the Bill) on 10 August 2017.

Upon commencement, the Bill will apply a No Body, No Parole policy to applications for a parole order from prisoners serving a period of imprisonment for a prescribed homicide offence where the body or remains of the victim of the offence have not been located; or because of an act or omission of the prisoner or another person, parts of the body or remains of the victim have not been located.

The term homicide offence is particularly broad, and is defined to capture the offences of murder, manslaughter, conspiring to murder, misconduct with regard to corpses, unlawful striking causing death; an offence of being an accessory after the fact or any of these offences; or an offence of counselling or procuring the commission of, or conspiring the commission of, any of these offences.

The definition also captures offences from another jurisdiction that substantially correspond with a Queensland offence prescribed in the definition of homicide offence, in circumstances where the applicant prisoner has been transferred to a Queensland prison under the Prisoners (Interstate Transfer) Act 1982.

The Bill provides that if the parole board is not satisfied the prisoner has cooperated satisfactorily in the investigation of the offence to identify the victim's location, the parole board must refuse the application. Importantly, the No Body, No Parole policy in the Bill also applies to a parole application whether the prisoner was convicted of, or sentenced for, the offence before or after commencement.

Although I note the specific concerns raised in your correspondence, the Attorney-General cannot interfere with individual parole applications, regardless of the circumstances. As individual parole matters fall under the ministerial responsibilities of the Honourable Mark Ryan MP, Minister for Police, Fire and Emergency Services and Minister for Corrective Services, I have referred a copy of your email to the office of Minister Ryan for his consideration.

On behalf of the Attorney-General, I thank you again for your tireless efforts in advocating the implementation of this reform.

Yours sincerely

JAMES SULLIVAN
